New CD from Bajkal Records:

WintherStormer : Woodwork

WintherStormer is an electronic band performing improvised electronic music on analogue instruments without any safety

WintherStormer went into studio in January 2007 to record their first CD after many festival appearances, including the Oslo Synth festival and the Oslo Prog festival, as well as the major synth festival «E-live» in Holland October 2006. Positive reviews from press in Norway, Holland, Spain, England and America as well as a solid request from the fans contributed to the band's desire to release a studio CD. The music is totally improvised, both musically and electronically. Everything is laid open, with no pre-programmed sounds (no MIDI involved) or pre-arranged musical structures. The music is in all senses of the word - live.

WintherStormer performs music on analogue modular synthesizers, electronic guitar and metal and wood percussion. The music is inspired by the music of the 1970s, when bands and musicians searched the corners of rock music, making improvised music in the cross-section between strange electronic sounds and the minimalistic drive of rock.

WintherStormer is pulsing electronics, rock improvisation, contemporary improvisation, both familiar and strange sounds, but most of all; musical communication with an unknown factor.

WintherStormer will perform at the large electronic «Norberg-festival» during summer 2007.
